The News Menagerie. Politics' Laughing Hyena. 25,000 Speakeasies. Would Gov. Smith Help?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE -(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Iteview.)

SPEAKING of law enforcement, brohibition, etc., real figures are enlightening. When this writer was a young reporter, New York City had about 8,000 policemen, 8,000 school teachers, and 8,000 saloons with an average of two bartenders to each.

Now, Mayor Walker, of New York, determined to find out about speak, easies — the modern saloon—learns that New York City has at least 25,000.

REVERE ROLE

CLEVELAND, Sept. 11. - The Paul Revere of the skies makes his appearance today in the person of William "Wild Bill" Hopson, air mail pilot of the Chicago-New York air route.

While making his regular trip last night Hopson discovered that a barn was on fire in Warrensville Heights village, on the outskirts of Cleveland. The blaze threatened several homes nearby and no one, apparently, was aware of it. The aviator swooped down and flew back and forth at a low altitude over the village until he awakened one of the residents who spread the alarm.

natural export outlets for grain accumulated in Kansas City from a territory comprising part of the Kansas wheat belt may be eliminated through a rate ruling handed down by the interstate commerce commission here recently.

The action of the interstate commerce commission is being characterized by grain men as the most disturbing freight rate decision made by the commission in many years.

The order discontinues the transit privilege on grain moving to or through the Kansas City market on shipment to the gulf originating south of the main line of the Santa Fe railroad, on a line through Newton, Hutchinson, Dodge City, and Garden

Tangled Situation.
This tangled freight rate situation in the southwest is causing much concern among the farmers and grain men in this territory for the principal reason that it deprives growers of an export market, which is most important in the balancing of prices. Carriers and shippers are now making plans to enter a vigorous protest against the ruling to the commission. It is expected representatives of several railroads affected by the ruling will go to Washington to seek a re hearing of the case.

Rate experts recall that the first movement to cancel the transit privilege here was started more than 20 years ago, the principal opposition being from Wichita, Kan., Hutchinson, Kan., and interior points within proximity of those markets. Blow to Farmer.

It was contended Kansas City was favored unduly by rate schedules which permitted wheat to be shipped from southern Kansas into this market and then reshipped to gulf ports for export.

If the transit privilege is cancelled it will lower the price basis in this market on export bids, the reduction being a direct blow to the Kamsas farmer, who will receive less money for his wheat was the opinion of the leads to be a lead of trade.

Air-Rail Passenger Service Offered East Liverpool Patrons by Pennsy Co.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company and the Northwest Airways, subsidiary of the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., have inaugurated air rail passenger service between New York and Minneapolis-St. Paul, cording to an announcement received by James T. Hodgkinson, C. & P. division passenger agent at East Liverpool. Connections at Chicago with air planes which will be operated between Chicago and Minneapolis-St. Paul will be made with one west-bound train and two eastbound trains. Train No. 23, known as the Manhattan limited, will leave New York at 6:15 p. m., arriving in Chicago at 2:05 p. m. the following day. Passengers traveling on this train will make connections with a plane leaving the Cicero aviation field, Chicago, at 3 p. m., arriving at the St. Paul municipal airport at 7 p. m. and at the Wold-Chamberlain field, Minneapolis, at 7:10 p. m. Schedule of Planes.

On the eastbound trip planes will leave the Minneapolis airport at 8:30 a. m. and the St. Paul field at 8:40 and arrive at Chicago at 12:10 p. m. These passengers on these planes will be conveyed to the Pennsylvania station where they can make connections with the Broadway Limited which leaves : t 12:40 p. m. or the Liberty Limited leaving at 1:10 p m. These two trains arrive in Nev York at 9:40 a. m. and 9 a. m., respectively. The running time on the westbound trip between New York and St. Paul is 24 hours and 55 minutes while the time required for the eastbound is 24 hours and 30 minutes by one train and 25 hours and 10 minutes by the other.

Airplane fare between Chicago and Minneapolis-St. Paul which includes taxi-cab charges between the railroad stations and the flying fields, is $45. No charge will be made for children under three years of age if carried on the lap of parent or guardian. Passen-gers arriving in Chicago are transferred from the Englewood or Union stations to Cicero field by the Yellow Cab company. "ZENITH WEEK" OBSERVED HERE

As the old-fashioned hand-cranked aut-mobile passed into oblivion with the introduction of the selt-starter; the hand-tuned radio set of yesterday too, will soon become a memory of the past with the appearance on the radio horizon today of Zenith Auto matic Tuning.

This week the Smith & Phillips company, local Zenith dealer, will demonstrate in the store this new sensational radio feature as part of "Na tional Zenith Automatic Week" to be held throughout the entire country for the public demonstration of Zenith Automatic Tuning. Automatic Tuning holds at instant command, the owner's favorite sta-tions at the touch of a finger. Press the button - there's your station! Zeni'h's amazing "station-a-second" demonstration clever, illustrates the simplicity by which even a child can provide a complete program of radio features from various stations without even a glance or touch of the dial.

The automatic levers are easily set by the owner for the stations of his or her choice, which are thereafter immediately available at the touch of a button, with the same full rich Zen-ith tone and precise tuning as originally set. Changes of stations may be made at any time by the mere turn of a button.

One of the many interesting features of Zenith Automatic Tuning is that the dial is free at all times for the oldfachioned method of hand-tuning even though the automatic levers are adjusted for preferred stations.

Under this plan, second time offenders can be sent to the workhouse, or jail, for a year and third time offenders may be imprisoned for two years and fined $800.

Flagrant violations of traffic ordinances have aroused the prosecutor. "This severe action," he says, "climaxes an effort on the part of the police to curb the excessive and continued violations of trafffic laws, and is factures and trade. Dollar Watchmaker Dies

Millions of men in the United States, not to mention the youngsters, know Robert H. lingersoll only as the man who made a dollar watch not only possible, but popular.

So the death of this man the other day is of more than passing importance.

It is the fond wish of every boy, from the day when he first learns how to tell the time, to own a watchone like dad has. In the old days it would, of necessity, have to 1) a pocket watch, because then the strap ducing power exceeds that of the coffee or fruit crops watch was not popular. Nowadays the boy wants a strap watch

Robert H. lingersoll was like other boys in this re spect. He lived on a farm in Michigan. He wanted a have developed their highest skill. watch. But he didn't have the money to buy one and watches in those days cost real money. So Robert H. Ingersoll determined to make a watch which could be Italy, and Spain taking most of the rest of the six milsold for a dollar and which would keep correct time.

Everyone knows how Ingersoll succeeded. The story of this success reads much like one of those Horatio Alger stories, and so everyone had a watch. The boys and the men, too, who couldn't afford the more costly timepieces, were content with one of the Ingersoll offerings.

The early Ingersoll dollar watches are to be given to the Smithsonian Institution, to take their place alongside Lindbergh's plane and the other interesting things there which posterity will reverence in years to come.

Politics has become genteel. And in the party palavers, the women are conspicuous and active as never they were before.

Will For Peace

What if they had outlawed war prior to 1776? War has not always been a thing to be unqualifiedly despised. It has sometimes been the only effective means for the righting of gross political wrongs.

Of course it is apparent now that, as circumstances have developed in these latter days, there are much better way of settling disputes. Still, there are nations today held in subjection to powers for whom they have no loyalty or respect, and one wonders how they can expect to set themselves free without resort to arms.

Had there been a just settlement of boundaries in the Versailles treaty there would be no argument at all against the Kellogg pact to outlaw war. As it is, some of the oppressed peoples are sure to raise loud protests. They are apt to regard the treaty as an instrument for barring the door to their hope for future delivery.

The great thing about the treaty, though, is that it is, in theory, at least, a moral achievement. When fifteen o the world powers sit down and formally renounce the oldest implement of policy among nations, that is, naturally, a portentous event, which will lay a great responsibility upon tomorrow's statecraft.

The will for peace has been impressively manifested. It is an occasion for rejoicing. But whether that can be most effectively expressed by nations which do not choose to dissolve their earlier engagements, under the treaties of Versailles and Locarno, remains to be termined.

These anniversaries have given the people of Porto Rico an occasion to take stock of what thirty years as an American territory have meant to them. On the bay of Guanica, where the first American soldiers landed in 1898, there stands today the sugar mill of the Guanica central, which produce more than 90,000 tons of sugar a year, or one and one-half times the total sugar with the reckless automobile driver who is responsible output of Porto Rico in 1898. In 1927 the tobacco exports were $24,891,381.00, chiefly made up as cigars and cigarettes almost all to the United States.

The third largest item of Porto Rican export trade would astonish any veteran of '98 who remembered the is 'nd of that year. It is textiles, chiefly handmade by the skilled needle worker, of the tight little island. The women are the powerful force in this newer and fast growing industry, which producd more than nine mil-lion dollars worth of exports last year. or "talipes" as the doctors call it.
"Talipes equinus," the the name indicates, is a deformity where the victim walks on his toes, just as the horse does. The heel is drawn up and the sole of the foot is directed backward. This position is taken because the muscles at the back of the leg are shortened, so that the heel cannot be brought to the ground. Walking on the balls of the toes produces callouses there. The most common form of clubfoot is called "talipes varus." In this variety the foot is bent forward. In consequence, the victim walks on the outer side or edge of the foot. In "talipes valgus" the natural arch of the foot is absent. The foot is bent outward, and the walking is done on the inner side of the foot There is a rare form of talipes in which the toes and front of the foot are drawn upward. On this account t is necessary to walk on the heel. Flat-foot is really a form of talipes. The arch is lost and the foot sags flatly against the floor. This may be acquired. During the war it was surprising how many victims of flatfeet were discovered in the draft ex-

THE HIGH POWERED KNOCKLESS MOTOR FUEL AT NO EXTRA PRICE

PROVE IT YOURSELF-Drive on Blue Sunoco exclusively. It will be readily apparent that Blue Sunoco will do anything that Premium priced fuels will do, and in most cases outdo even these. Blue Sunoco gives freedom from knocking: power on hills: fast getaway: and most miles per dollar.

Blue Sunoco's advent signified a radical betterment in gasoline. This company succeeded in developing from petroleum only, a pure powerful motor fuel, which not only gave most miles per dollar, but which permitted high compression motors to operate without knocks.

To you motorists, this means a much wider range of driving in high gear, fewer gear shifts in traffic or on hills, and obviously greater, much greater, economy. A Premium motor fuel at regular gasoline price.

American and other visitors to Downing street have always marveled at the singularly plain external appearance of this official residence of England's premiers. It is built of grayish bricks, has flat, ugly windows, a black painted door, and a generally forbidding aspect. Refacing with stone, it is said, would add to its appearance and impressiveness.

During Ramsey MacDonald's ministry a great crack appeared in one of the inner walls. Recently new beams were put into the building, and it is now being repainted.

Merry War Between Motorist and Quiet Village.

DRIVERS WARNED Motorcycle Officer Works on Commission Basis.

ABILENE, Kan.-A merry war between the hurrying motorist and the traffic rules of Solomon, Kan., a quiet little village of eight hundred souls, is attracting attention all along the South U. S. Highway No. 40. Solomon desired the federal road to follow its main street but as that included two crossing of the Union Pacific railway the engineers refused and as a result routed the road through a wide residence street which county commissioners surfaced with sand and gravel.

—Posses of stretcher bearers
still were searching the scene of the great disaster for the dead and dying this morning as another day dawned to the east of that sprawling octopus of golf courses, Braeburn. It was to have been a day given over to a fighting finish of the national amateur golf championship's qualifying round but, to many in the original field of 143, hope and even life itself was all but extinct.

Notables of the links were among the major casualties found among the ruins of the first day's play, even Robert T. Jones, Jr., the young maestro, was listed among the injured for

4 Doubles In 4 Days Tough Bill

But That's Test Giants Face With Braves.

By Les Conklin.

EW YORK, Sept. 11.—Encouraged by the third straight defeat of the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals, the New York Giants today braced themselves for one of the toughest hurdles that ever confronted a pennant contender. On the heels of yesterday's double bill in Boston, they must play three more double-headers with the Braves today, tomorrow and Thursday. Eight games in four successive days will test the New York hurlers to the limit.

The two victories over the Braves yesterday put the Giants within three games of the Cards and only one point behind the second-place Cubs. Fitzsimmons had won a 4 to 1 duel from Bob Smith, Joe Genevich held his former mates to three hits and whitewashed them, 11 to 0.

whitewashed them, 11 to 0.

Kenneth Ash, Cincinnati rookie, stymied the Cards, 7 to 2. The Reds chased Flint Rhem and Sylvester Johnson. Three double plays by the porkville outfit gave them a total of 174 for the season. This tied the Na-tional league record and is within eight of the American league mark. The Pirates, fighting desperately to reach the leaders, outslugged the Cubs, 7 to 5, in a wild game in which eight pitchers were used. Burleigh Grimes mopped up for the Bucs and was credited with his 23rd victory. The salivary slants of Red Faber dampened the spirits of the Tigers as the White Sox negotiated a 6 to 4 tritumph for their ninth win in ten

Believe it or not, the Red Sox won a season's series. The Bostonese made it 13 victories in 22 games with

Even if the Yanks and the A's start on their final western tour with the former leading by a game and a half, there are many who insist that the ers and of Henri Cochet, in particular.

Hennessy's defeat by Dr. George King was one of the most striking upsets ever seen in the national sinand opened the gates to the Big Top the way, the brunt of the American for the southpaw first sacker who had made good on the hill.

The way, the brunt of the American defense is thrust upon George Lott, of Chicago, and John Van Ryn, of gles and now with Hennessy out of Princeton

Second only to Hennessy's over-throw was the defeat of Dr. J. Colin Gregory, of England, one of the fore-most English players, and one of the two "seeded" foreigners to be eliminated. Gregory was forced out of the tournament by H. L. Bowman, an old time New York player, the other seeded player to fall by the wayside was Edgar F. Romance in New York

By GILBERT ROGERS

Cold, bleak skies pretending that Spring was not yet here, not yet come to New England, and pretending with some assurance. Carlotta was busy with a thousand details, opening up this room, having that thing cleaned, telephoning markets, calling up friends, rush ing about in her car, and leaving Sally to herself.

"Next week—tea. You might as well hide until then I must find out who's here. Oh, isn't the mail beastly! Not a word from-from anyone . . ."

Sally sat alone in the soft grey drawing-room. A man came down the Colonial staircase, and stood looking at hor. Uncomfortable, inscrutable eyes—unhappy eyes.

Mark Trelaw-Mrs. Brooke's brother-Sally had met him and been startled. Not a word had been said about Mark Trelaw, and he, too, was silent. A lean, bitter face, she thought. Then she had noticed his arm, held hith, at a crooked angle, an arm that had been with ered. A cripple—of course, that was it, that explained that look in his face, that uncanny watchful silence. At first she kept thinking about him, wondering. But he came to meals, talked rarely, stole away, hid somewhere. A library on the upper floor-his room. Mark

What are you doing here?" It was a cold, harsh

"Why-just-just-oh, nothing?" she ended. "I don't mean this room, this house-I mean-up

"I'm visiting your sister." Why did he look at her

"I'm visiting your sister." Why did he look at her like that? W'at was the matter, anyway?

He made a sudden gesture. "Better get away while you can," he said. "While you can. This house isn't everything you think it is. Better go." She stared. He gave a short, quick laugh. "Oh, you won't—no, you won't. You want pleasure. Very well. Only you'll remember what I've told you—some day."

He had gone, slipped away, leaving her speechless and troubled. What on earth did he mean by those cryptic things. Timidly she ventured to find out when Car-things. Timidly she ventured to find out when Car lotta arrived breathlessly ten minutes later.

"Oh, Mark—don't pay any attention to Mark. He's just a disappointed clergyman—he should have been a missionary. He's always full of dark, menacing promises about future punishment." She spoke lightly, but a shadow of apprehension touched her eyes. Was she, too, afraid of Mark Tre-

"Carlotta!" Sally looked sombre. Her little head, poised for gayety, had a deeper beauty in its sudden gravity. She looked down at her soft sports costume, down to her smart, brown, mannish shoes. "Carlotta! don't really think this is all wrong?"

"Wrong?"
Oh, I want money—I don't want to work all my life.
But—fifty dollars a week—that would have spelled luxury to me. I don't want too much."

"Oh, you will," Carlotta said airily. "You're goling to meet people who think they're starving of fifty thou-sand a year. As for me. I'm really dirt poor, shanty Oh, if I had your chances!" "But," Sally stammered, "I don't see-I mean honestly

--you--you're so good looking. And you're a widow. And you know things--you're not inexperienced. So I don't see why you-" Carlotta Brooke shook her head. "Don't you?" she said. "Well, I'll tell you why. Because I'm a fool, a fool. Only I know it."

She looked out of the window, looked at invisibility, and Sally knew she was thinking of Dan Shevlin. Dan Shevlin, with his cruelty, his cynical indifference. . It would be a terrible thing if she, too, fell in love with somebody like like Dan Shevlin. And you never could

She wanted to shake off her mood. And luncheon was over. Mar': Trelaw had sat at the foot of the table, not looking at her, sitting there as if he had ceased to exist as if he asked to be forgotten.

Sally took one of the dogs, a Great Dane, and followed the cliff walk, breathing in the sweet air, looking out at t' sea now and then where it dissolved in spray on the brown rocks, looking now and then at the spacious lawns not doing anything wrong. Only why do I feel afraid just the same. Suppose Florence Clark and the Grahams could see me now. Of course they wouldn't believe their eyes."

Not all the houses were opened yet, some had the blank, sad look of places guarded only by caretakers. They stood proudly there, great, simple Georgian houses, houses that were reproductions of noblemen's estates, low-roofed rambling places of stained wood, houses of stately marble.

They made her feel lonely and little and unimportant. And Carlotta was too busy now getting things ready, seeing that the machinery of her household was made smooth. But there were things to do as well as things to think about.

Walking early the next morning for instance. And then c whim, a sudden longing to go in for a swim all alone in the clear green seawater. Swim and swim and plash around and come back for breakfast.

She walked in the first light, and her cheeks glowed with soft color. "I feel pretty," she said delightedly to herself. "And if you feel that you must be even if you're not!" She began to run, conscious of being young and glad to think of all the big adventures that lay be-

She had slipped skirt and sweater over a bathing suit. Now with no one to see her, she went down to the beach, friendlier than Bailey's, she felt. The water was co'l, but it mac' you laugh, and after you were in, it wasn't so bad, it was—why, it was delicious!

Not quite half a mile out there was a boat, a little tigly boat with a cabin built on it the wrong way, a shabby little boat that would have thanked anyone gratefully for a coat of paint. Sally swam out to it, drew herself up, dangled her toes in the water, lifted her arms to the rising sun.

"Hello," said a voice miraculously behind her.

don't very often have visitors."

He was smiling at her. He had a brown face and light eyes. And a woolen chirt. And canvass trousers. And sneakers. He was about twenty-seven.

"I'm awfully sorry, I didn't know anyone was board." She prepared to slide off in the water.
"Oh, don't—don't do that" He looked alarmed.

"You'll get all wet." "Thats an awfully bad joke."

"Then why are you laughing at it?"
"I'm laughing 2 you." "Have breakfast with me-I was just about to get some. Do you like your eggs done on both sides?"

They talked. He was Jerry Evesham. "My Aunt's got a place back there. I'm the disreputable one of the family. That's to say, I haven't got any money. However—" And then afterwards, "And you of course have all the money in the world. Oh you rich, rich girls. How I'd like to take one of you on a cruise"

"I can't help being rich, can I?" Sally asked. Queer how easy it was to talk to this man. Why, she'd be calling him Jerry in a minute. He looked as fresh and young as if he bathed twelve times a day. Nice eyes, too, a nice mouth.

She slid from the deck into the sparkling water. "So long!" "Come and see me again." "Do you live on this boat?" Of course not, but I'll live anywhere you say if you'll only come and see me.' Things like that shouted across the water, half heard, not clearly said, but friendly things that promised, that meant more than they said She was still thinking about him when her bathing suit dried under the sun, and she was running back to the house again.

PREPARES FOR

Nebraska Promises Great Welcome, Hitchcock Says.

DRAFTS SPEECH

Nominee to Make Position on Farm Relief Clear.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Governor Alfred E. Smith plunged into the real work of preparing for his forthcoming invasion of the West today heartened by assurances that he is going into no unfriendly territory, but that on the contrary he is going to receive a great welcome from a people politically undecided and eager to hear his message.

These assurances were brought to Albany by former Senator Gilbert Hitchcock of Nebraska, in which state Governor Smith will inaugurate his western speaking tour one week from tonight. In that speech the governor plans to make his position on farm relief unmistakably clear. Will Recommend Equalization Plan.

Present indications are that the governor in his Omaha speech will commend the principle of the equalization fee as applied to the disposal of crop surpluses, without, however, committing himself to any particular abelled plan.

Prohibition, the Senator said, would not cut a great deal of ice in Nebraska.

As for the religious issue, he declared Nebraska had had a "mild ease" of being alarmed over that, but it seems to be wearing off." Claims Swing Toward Smith

There has been a marked swing toward Smith on the part of the farmers during the last 90 days.

GOV. AL SMITH Governor Smith will devote most of his time this week to the preparation of data to be used in his western speeches. The callers at Albany will be few.
